Affairs in England. BUSINESS IN PARLIAMENT-FREE TRADE POLICY CONFIRMED, ETC.

If any doubt existed 'after Mr. Disrsell's motion, that the Derby government would throw protection overboard, it was set at rest by Lord Derby in the House of Lords, or the 22d inst.

instantly negatived by a large majority. Under these circumstances he had telt it his duty to advise her Majesty to declare that the principle of unrestricted commerce ought to be adopted. (Cheers.) After making this explicit statement, government might have rested, this explicit statement, government might have rested, but it went further, and announced its budget for an early day, from the details of which the country would be enabled to judge of the sincertly of the government and the windom of its policy. (Cheers.) An attempt has been made in the lower House to anticipate discussion by a resolution to which no member of the government can agree, but it would be well it those who were about to support the motion would consider, not so much how to overthrow the government, but hew they could form an administration if it were overthrown? (Cheers) to a Tuesday jevening. Mr. Villiers' motion was opprobabledly referred to by the Earl or Derby, in the Lords—while, in the Commens, it was under detate. Mr. VII. liers declared he had brought forward his motion for the purpose of placing on record ann unintakable declaration on the subject of free trade, that men of business, and the world, might comprehend the final decision of Evgland on this all important question.

Mr. Dirarsii, in moving his amendment, ingeniously persisted in resolving Mr. Villiers' motion into an inquiry whether the government had fulfilled its pledges since it came into power Following out this view, he maintained that the Derby administration was, of necessity, one of eccupromize and ceneliation. The office was thrust upon them when the former cabinet fell to please from internal discord, and they acceded to power by no motion coanceted with protection, consequently they yielated as metal to repell any of the measures of the first reach.

Mr. Brieff replied at length, in a speech chiefly noticeable for the following passage:—"If the House maintained Mr. Villiers' motion, the United States, where a free trade President had just been returned by an overwholming majority, would also know it. (Hear.) In the United States protection was in the same helpiess condition it was in this country, and though well beaten, the supporters of that came still cling by it, as in this country. (Laughter and choser.) But when President Pierce, in diarch next, comes into power, they mightlook forward to the reciprocity just now so much tasked about there. Therefore, let them put on the books of the House a resolution that nobody could mistake "Lord Palassassros kellfully smoothed over the aspertice of both spreches and suggested, but did not formally submit, some verbal amendments.

The debate was then adjourned.

Next day it was resumed by Sir James Graham. Messas, (Indstone, Cobden, and others, and resulted in the withdrawal of Mr. Disnell's amendment, and the effering of the following by Lord Palmerston:—

"It is the opinion of this House that the improved condition of the country in an expectition, which has estatisfied the principle of unrestrated congentition, and had abolished the trans imposed for the purpose of crotection. That it is the opin leng of the result of the purpose of crotection. That the the principle of unrestrated congentition, and had abolished the trans imposed for the purpose of protection. That the the opin length of the falses, that this policy rollow ed, maintained, and prudently extended will best anable the industry of the country to be are its burdens, and thereby seagedly primate the welfare and contentment of the popule. That this House is ready to take into the content of the purpose of the Message of th 468, against it, 53; majority for the amendment, 415.

The House then adjourned.

In the House of Lords on the 25th ult, in reply to Lord Wherneliffe, the Earl of Malmesbury stated, with reference to the North American fisherier, that Mr. Webster's letter areas neither from the government piscing a new construction upon the Treasury order regulating the fisheries, nor from the use of improper language in the insolution. He did not know what was the cause of the letter being written unless it resulted from circumstances which occurred to the American government at the time of the Presidential election. He must refuse to produce the papers in the prizent peculiar state of the negotiation.

Luch assured the House that the most friendly spirit prevailed bearson to the two governments. With the exception of that ose letter, everything tended to a most anti-sfactory conclusion. He would produce the papers as soon as possible. The House then adjourned.

CASTING OF THE VOTE-TRIMENDOUS MAJORITY FOR LOUIS NAPOLEON, ETC.

The vote for the Empire was cast on the 21st and 221 of November. Bo'h public and private accounts agree that the ceremony was conducted decorously, but with-out any show of enthusiasm. From the pains taken to bring up the voters, the returns will exhibit a large ma-jority-greater probably, than on any previous appeal to the people By telegraph we learn that, up to the morning of the 27th, the latest returns, including eightythree departments, and the army and navy, were :-Yes, 7,200,000; No. 250,000.

In Paris, the number of voters who abstained from voting in December, 1848, amounted to one fourth of the whole; in December, 1851, to one-fifth; and on this occasion to one serenth. The result for the department of the Seine was pro-claimed on Thursday morning the 25th ult., at the Hotel de Ville, amidst cries of "Fire I Emperer," On Thurs-day, site the Corps Legislatif met and proceeded with the appointment of the committees. The scratisy of the voles would occupy some days—pethaps four—and pro-bebly on the 1st of December the result would be au-mounced and the official proclamation of the new em-pire would be made on the 2d of December, the anniver-cary of the corp d'eta and the coronation of Napoleon. On the 2d will appear the Sentime considers, with the modification, which will be few, but the court stiquistic of the Southons and of the Empire will be restored. It is said the Emperer will address one manifesto to France and another to Europe Both, we are told, will be essentially pacific. The President has sent already an official message to the legislative body, stating that the government will undergo a change merely in name. THE LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

[From Brown, Shipley & Co.'s Circular, Nov. 26.]
This has been the dullest week in cotton that has co. curred in many menths, the laregularity and depression in prices being so great, that it is impossible to give correct quotations. The prices of American descriptions rect quotations. The prices of American descriptions have given way one fourth of a penny per pound, establishing a decline, on the actual business of three works since, of three farthings in the middling and upper grades, and one penny per pound in the inferior and lower classes. The following are the efficial quotations, which are quite nominal and fully one eighth of a penny too high for fair questities.

Fair Oriesna. 6 of Fair Uplands. 5 of Middling. 6 of Middling of Middling. 6 of Middling of Middling. 6 of Middling of Middling of Middling. 6 of Middling of Middling of Middling of Middling. 6 of Middling of Mid mittee of the Whole on the state of the Union, and took up the annual message of the President of the United States Mr Houston offered a series of resolutions, referring its various parts to the appropriate standing committees.

Mr. Houseon said it was not his intention to occupy the time of the committee in discussion at this tie his object merely was to have the message referred, withcut delay, that the various branches of it may be acted upon at once by the committees. Mr. Bacous offered an amendment, to except from reference to the Committee of Ways and Means so much of collect terrimony here and elsewhere, with instructions to report by bit or otherwise, on or before the 25th day of January next.

Mr. Baoors, (whig.) of N. Y., submitted a few remarks in addition to what he said on Tuesday, and repeated his masons why the Committee on Ways and Means should not have the entire control of the revenue. He had proposed to send the subject to a select committee, because the Committee of Ways and Means would find it utterly impose the with all the appropriation bits before them, to attend to any other business, even with the most as sideous attention. If this subject should be designed until the appropriation bills are prepared, then it will be too late to not upon it during this assisten. Therefore he had, in his proposition, instructed the select committee to ecilect the noise forthwith, and report before the 25th of January is at. He cald that something must be done as a representative of fifteen or twenty entities in the treasure of the givenment; and when the amount in the treasure of the givenment; and when the amount thus leaded up in New York goes beyond six millions, the mercannic interests became measy, for the beart threatened to effect the whole system of the currency. He had, therefore at this early period, though his proposition before the House. He did not intend, or for a shift you would voe He out freely, as the most threatened to the currency and the meaning the country might demand. It would be better to vole for the whitest system of interest upperconcert than suffer twenty might demand.

Mr. Basous replied, the first proposition was a reduc-tion of the duty on the raw material of manufactures. He hoped that there would be no objection on any side of the floure to an unlargement of the first of the free and ties. He then referred to the various propositions before the country connected with the tariff -five of them in number—and said the democratic party and the morn-ing administration must meet the question. If they permit the surplus revenue to accumulate, it will be said it was because they want an extravegant administration, and a wasteful distant ment of the public measy, and she whigs would hold them to strict responsibility for those expenditures. It is our (the whig) duty, he said to tender to you can made and manner or reducing the revenue, and accommodating it to the wants of the government.

levying duties on imports no more revenue be collected than will defray the expanses of an economical administration."

Mr. Woodward, (dem.) of S. C., was satisfied the House would not admit of any general and fundamental action upon the subject now before them; but it was because that it is true, and more than true, that the longest ression is not long enough to mature action upon this subject, that he was in favor of bringing up the discussion now, that it may go before the people, and the public mind he brought to bear on the next Courselant now, that it may go before the people, and the public mind he brought to bear on the next Courselant He, in reply to Mr. Brooks, said a permanent system is inconsistent with the object of the system, which is money and a revenue.

Mr. CLENDARD, (dem.) of Conn., contended that the time is favorable to make such investigation as is proposed and he expressed himself squints transmoling the committee report, and then it would be for the House to act. He was for disconnecting this subject from party politics.

Mr. Duncas, (whig.) of Mass. merely rose to call the stending of the House to a lew errors in the tariff fact of 1846, and showed the importance of taxing off the duty from raw word and fax, and said this could be done without detriment to any section. At the same time it would not operate to the benefit of manufacturers alone but wools reduce the prices of the manufacturers alone but were a reduce the prices of the manufacturers alone but were reduce the prices of the manufacturers alone but were requested.

Mr. Bracosa resumed, remarking that the gentleman was entherly mistaken.

Mr. Bracosa resumed, seying his resolution, the other day, spake for ired, and declined to accept the amendment. In conclusion, he replied to the remarks of Mr. Dean, (dem.) of N. Y. and of Mr. Brown, of Masissppi, hereofore delivered, showing that the tariff of 18th was not the law under which duties had been collected, but it was the treasury of recular of Mr. Waiker, and Mr. Hockmart, (dem.) of In., proposed an amendment, inctrucing the proposed select committee to report a bill graduating and reducing the tariff to a revenue standard.

Mr. Barry, (dem.) of Va. approved of the practice which the gentleman from New York (Mr. Brooks) desired to introduce. It was betroved from the British Farliament, where they never undertook to legislate on any great object of policy without institution a commission in relation to it. So far as the tariff is concerted, he would faror the policy, because the manufacturers can niways not in concert, and thus always present their views in the meat favorable manner to the country; whereas the great body of agriculturalists are left to individual combat. But there was another practice of the British Parliament as well as this, and one more becoming to us, because here greater deference is, and ought to be paid to public sentiment and that practice is, on the outgoing of a parliament and the outgoing of an acministration to attempt no radical charge of policy, but merely pass the appear maken bills. This House and the administration is natured and half of the members of this House when the outgoing of a parliament and the outgoing of an acministration is natured to the government.
